

OPEN-AIR MUSEUM OF OLD JAPANESE FARM HOUSES in Osaka

The Open-Air Museum of Japanese farmhouses is an outdoor museum where representative houses from throughout Japan have been moved and restored for exhibition. Located on grounds of about 36,000m² inside Hattori Ryokuchi Park in Toyonaka city, Osaka prefecture.

These houses are all built in the EDO period (17th ~ 19th century) and are imbued with the style created by the climate, culture and customs characteristic to each locality.

Each style of living transcends the depths of time to convey to us quietly important messages.

View old houses from all over Japan in one place

Gassho-zukuri Farmhouse from Hida Shirakawa (Gifu prefecture)

Farmhouse from Shinano Akiyama (Nagano prefecture)

Farmhouse from hyuga Shiiba (Miyazaki prefecture)

The park is located around 30min by car from the center of Osaka

How about walking around Hattori Ryokuchi Park and seeing the museum after tour of Osaka?